The country's commitment to preserving its environment ensures that many of these landscapes remain unspoiled and accessible, making nature-based activities some of the best things to do in New Zealand.

Fiordland National Park and Milford Sound

Arguably one of the most iconic destinations in New Zealand, Fiordland National Park is home to Milford Sound, often described as the eighth wonder of the world. The fiord's dramatic cliffs, cascading waterfalls, and deep blue waters create a cinematic backdrop that draws thousands of visitors annually. Cruises through Milford Sound provide an intimate perspective of the fjord's grandeur, with opportunities to spot seals, dolphins, and penguins.

However, the track requires advance booking due to its popularity and conservation efforts limiting daily hiker numbers.

Te Puia.

What sets Rotorua apart, beyond its natural phenomena, is the opportunity to engage with Maori traditions. This blend of natural and cultural tourism makes Rotorua one of the best things to do in New Zealand for travelers eager to understand the country's identity.

Adventure and Outdoor Activities

Queenstown: The Adventure Capital

Queenstown on the South Island has earned its reputation as the adventure capital of New Zealand. The town serves as a hub for bungee jumping, skydiving, jet boating, and paragliding. The Kawarau Bridge, where commercial bungee jumping was first pioneered, remains a must-visit spot for thrill-seekers.

Beyond extreme sports, Queenstown's location beside Lake Wakatipu and the Remarkables mountain range makes it ideal for hiking, mountain biking, and skiing during winter. The accessibility combined with a vibrant town atmosphere, featuring cafes and fine dining, makes Queenstown an all-around destination for both adventure and relaxation.

Abel Tasman National Park: Kayaking and Coastal Walks

For those seeking a less intense but equally rewarding outdoor experience, Abel Tasman National Park offers stunning coastal walks and kayaking opportunities. The park's golden beaches and turquoise waters provide an idyllic setting for exploring by kayak, allowing visitors to get close to marine life and secluded coves.

The Abel Tasman Coast Track is also a highlight for hikers, with relatively easy terrain and well-maintained paths. This makes it an excellent choice for families and casual trekkers wanting to connect with nature without the physical demands of more rugged hikes like the Milford or Routeburn Tracks.

best things to do in new zealand: Student Debt and Political Participation Sylvia Nissen, 2018-10-04 This book examines how student debt informs the political action and participation of university students. The scale of student debt is unprecedented, particularly in the English-speaking world. In these democracies, debt has become an increasingly integral part of student life for many young people to enable participation in education and the wider economy. Using New Zealand as a case study, the author challenges existent assumptions about student attitudes towards loans by analysing how students speak about the impact of debt on themselves and their peers, including politically. Listening to these perspectives will provide a more nuanced insight into the underlying tensions and challenges of participating politically in a context of rising debt.
