beijing language and culture university press: Research in Chinese as a Second Language Istvan Kecskes, 2013-05-28 The book aims to address one of the main problems of Chinese language teaching: lack of research base. The rapidly growing interest in Chinese language teaching has not resulted in the development of a strong research background. This book attempts to change the current situation. The volume consists of three chapters. Chapter I: Research Base for Practice contains three papers, each of which uses research findings as a basis for solving issues connected with practical language teaching. Chapter II: Integrating Culture and Language is about one of the most intriguing topics of current language-oriented research: how to integrate culture into the process of language teaching. Chapter III: Acquisition of Language Structures consists of studies that investigate the acquisition of certain grammatical structures in Chinese. There are only a few papers in the literature on this issue, so the articles in this chapter are especially important for further research. One of the most important features of the volume is that each paper makes an attempt to bring together theory and practice by focusing on theory-building based on practice or theory application in practice. Thus the book can be recommended to both researchers and practitioners.

beijing language and culture university press: Mandarin Spread in Malaysia (UM Press) Wang Xiaomei, This book is the first of its kind on Mandarin spread in Malaysia. The author investigated the language situation in the Chinese community in Johor and proposed a theoretical framework to analyze language spread. In her proposal, mass media in Mandarin and Chinese education play significant roles in Mandarin spread. Both top-down and bottom spread are found, which is different from the process of English spread elsewhere. With the spread of Mandarin, more and more Chinese abandon Chinese dialects and identify with the pan-Chinese identity. Mandarin spread is a dynamic process, which is triggered by an internal force, i.e. sociolinguistic realignment of the community. In this book, the author compares Johor with Kuala Lumpur and Singapore in terms of their sociolinguistic realignment process. This is a book for sociolinguists, language planners, students of linguistics, school teachers, and general readers beijing language and culture university press: Multilingual Hong Kong: Languages, Literacies and Identities David C.S. Li, 2017-01-12 This volume gives an up-to-date account of the language situation and social context in multilingual Hong Kong. After an in-depth, interpretive analysis of various language contact phenomena, it shows why it is such a tall order for Hongkongers to live up to the Special Administrative Region government's language policy goalpost, 'bilingualism and trilingualism'. A detailed contrastive analysis between Cantonese and (a) English, (b) Modern Written Chinese, and (c) Putonghua helps explain the nature of the linguistic and acquisitional challenges involved. Economic forces and sociopolitical realities helped shape the 'mother tongue education' or 'dual MoI streaming' policy since September 1998. The book provides a critical review of the significant milestones and key policy documents from the early 1990s, and outlines the concerns of stakeholders at the receiving end. Another MoI debate concerns the feasibility and desirability of teaching Chinese in Putonghua (TCP). Based on a critical review of the TCP literature and recent psycholinguistic and neuroscience research, the language-in-education policy implications are discussed, followed by a few recommendations. Hongkongers of South Asian descent saw their life chances curtailed as a result of the post-1997 changes in the language requirements for gaining access to civil service positions and higher education. Based on a study of 15 South Asian undergraduate students' prior language learning experiences, recommendations are made to help redress that social inequity problem.

beijing language and culture university press: Teaching Chinese by Culture and TV Drama Lingfen Zhang, 2022-04-28 This book integrates culture and authenticity into Chinese classroom practice through exploring the potential of contemporary TV drama as teaching and learning materials for intercultural Chinese language teaching and learning. In addressing the four main challenges in culture teaching in Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language (TCFL), this book focuses on precisely this area of pedagogical practice in Chinese as foreign language education and draws on a wide interdisciplinary base, including foreign language education, cultural studies, and intercultural communication to explore the potential of authentic TV drama as language and culture materials for revitalising TCFL and foreign language teaching more generally. It examines in detail the culturally shaped beliefs, values, and practices that give meaning to the action and language of the selected clips in a modern, award-winning Chinese TV drama. This book shows a potential experiential pathway into (pedagogical) practices to bring contemporary culture into classrooms, to engage learners with contemporary and authentic texts, and to encourage inquiry-focused teaching practices, which – in being intercultural – allow for learners' own interpretations of cultural messages in interaction and to recognise learners as learning to understand their own values and beliefs as they learn to explore those of other cultures.

beijing language and culture university press: Lesenlernen im schulischen Chinesischunterricht : Prozesse und Strategien deutscher Schülerinnen und Schüler Lan

Diao, 2013 In ihrer Dissertation Lesenlernen im schulischen Chinesischunterricht: Prozesse und Strategien deutscher Schulerinnen und Schuler erforscht Lan Diao empirisch erstmalig das Lesen von deutschen Schulerinnen und Schülern in der chinesischen Sprache. Das einzigartige Schriftsystem der chinesischen Sprache bereitet europäischen Lernenden beim Lesen oft grosse Schwierigkeiten, aber das Chinesischlesen teilt mehr Gemeinsamkeiten mit dem Lesen in alphabetisch verschrifteten Sprachen als allgemein angenommen: Während die Schriftzeichenerkennung eine eigene Verarbeitungsebene beim Chinesischlesen bildet und sprachspezifische Aspekte aufweist, verläuft der Leseprozess in der chinesischen Sprache auf höheren Verarbeitungsebenen in derselben Weise wie bei alphabetisch verschrifteten Sprachen. In diesem Buch wird zunächst die theoretische Grundlage über das Lesen alphabetisch verschrifteter Sprachen und im Chinesischen dargestellt, wobei sowohl auf die Gemeinsamkeiten im Leseprozess als auch auf die sprachspezifischen Aspekte des Chinesischlesens hingewiesen wird. Durch Befragung, verbal reports und lautes Denken erhobene empirische Daten werden im Anschluss die Leseprozesse und -strategien der lesenden Schulerinnen und Schuler genauer beschrieben und analysiert. Insbesondere die Laut-Denk-Protokolle, die beim Lesen zweier chinesischer Texte von Schulerinnen und Schülern der Mittel- und Oberstufe an zwei deutschen Gymnasien erstellt worden sind, erlauben tiefe Einblicke in die Gedankenwelt der Lernenden und die Abläufe im Leseprozess. Trotz des explorativen Charakters der Studie können wichtige Schlussfolgerungen für das Lesenlernen im Chinesischunterricht gezogen werden.

beijing language and culture university press: Teaching of Culture in English as an International Language Shen Chen, Thi Thuy Le, 2018-08-06 The importance of integrating the teaching and learning of language and culture has been widely recognised and emphasized. However, how to teach English as an International Language (EIL) and cultures in an integrative way in non-native English speaking countries remains problematic and has largely failed to enable language learners to meet local and global communication demands. Developing students' intercultural competence is one of the key missions of teaching cultures. This book examines a range of well-established models and paradigms from both English-speaking and non-English speaking countries. Exploring questions of why, what, and how to best teach cultures, the authors propose an integrated model to suit non-native English contexts in the Asia Pacific. The chapters deal with other critical issues such as the relationship between language and power, the importance of power relations in communication, the relationship between teaching cultures and national interests, and balancing tradition and change in the era of globalisation. The book will be valuable to academics and students of foreign language education, particularly those teaching English as an international language in non-native English countries.
